

As a full-time free-lance writer, I understand the importance of copyright, but I also know the importance of fair use to the public at large. Crippling computer hardware and blocking the fair use of digital content distorts the balance of interests on which copyright is based. I oppose proposals to require computers block copying of copyrighted material.